Preface

This volume is the fourth update of ACIR's inventory of federal grant-in-aid programs. The first catalog was published in 1975. This update covers Congressional action from January 1, 1984, through December 31, 1986. It provides a snapshot of the scope and principal features of federal grant programs as of Fiscal Year 1987, and comments on major trends in categorical and block grants during the past three years.

Robert B. Hawkins, Jr.
Chairman

Acknowledgments

This report was prepared by Albert J. Richter, retired senior analyst, and Mary A. Dominguez, secretary, of the Commission staff.

The Commission gratefully acknowledges the cooperation of persons in 22 federal departments and agencies who verified and corrected data contained in this report. Full responsibility for content and accuracy rests, of course, with the Commission and its staff.

Federal Grant-in-Aid Programs to State and Local Governments: Grants Funded FY 1987

The number of federal categorical grant-in-aid programs available to state and local governments stood at 422 as of January 1, 1987, according to the most recent tally by the ACIR staff. This 1987 figure represents an increase of 30 programs, or about 8% from the 392 programs counted three years ago. This increase since 1984 contrasts with the trend in the previous three-year period when the number of categorical grants dropped precipitously from 534 in 1981 to 392 in 1984. The comparable triennial figures since ACIR began keeping tab in 1975 are shown in the table below.

Unlike the previous three years, when the net addition of eight block grants accounted for the consolidation of over 70 categorical grants, only one new block grant—criminal justice—was added between 1984 and 1987. The criminal justice block grant, however, did not replace any existing categorical grants. The addition of only one block grant since 1984 was not due to lack of effort on the part of the Reagan Administration. The President tried to persuade Congress to create block grants for science and mathematics education, older Americans programs, local highway and transit facilities, and environmental programs.

Block	4	4	4	12	13
Categorical	422	492	534	392	422
Total	446	496	538	404	435

Undoubtedly the most significant change in federal financial assistance available to state and local governments during this three-year period was the termination of General Revenue Sharing. Initiated by legislation in 1972, it came to an end on September 30, 1986.

In dollar terms, the changes from 1975 to 1984 and 1987 (estimated) are shown in the following table taken from data for selected years prepared by the Office of Management and Budget. The table shows the changing mix in the three types of grants. Most striking is the increase in the total amount of funding from 1975 to 1984 and again to 1987, and the shift in the proportion of funding allocated to each of the three general types. In percentage terms, categorical grants in 1987 are higher than they have been since 1975.

422 Categoricals

The categorical grants funded as of January 1, 1987, and their major features, are identified in the body of this catalog—an update of ACIR's 1975, 1978, 1981, and 1984 volumes.* Although the categorical grants are the focus of the following analysis, they are preceded in the listing by the 13 block grants funded as of the beginning of 1987.

Categorical grants are directed at specific, narrowly defined activities, and are distributed in one of two ways: (1) by a legislatively or administratively prescribed formula (formula grants) or (2) at the discretion of the relevant administrator (project or discretionary grants). Block grants, in contrast, are distributed in accordance with statutory formulae for use in a variety of activities within a broad functional area largely at the recipient's discretion. There were, of course, no functional restrictions on the use of General Revenue Sharing funds.

The increase in the overall number of categorical grants was shared proportionally between formula and project grants; that is, they retained roughly their one-third (formula) and two-thirds (project) shares from 1984 to 1987. Within the formula group, the number of project grants distributed by formula continued to decline relatively more than the other two types, indicating that Congress tended to move away from trying to assure that project grants are allocated among the states on a predetermined basis.

Table 1 shows the breakdown among the four major types of categorical grant programs at the time of the ACIR's five catalogs. The four types are described in the later section on Data Included.

The Changing Functional Mix

If one compares categorical grants in 1984 and 1987 by function (Table 2), one can see that federal policy shifted somewhat during the three-year period. Seventy-three programs were added and 43 were dropped during 1984-86. Health programs registered the greatest net increase, in large part because of new concerns about AIDS, mental health, and drug and alcohol abuse. Ten new programs were added in these three areas. The net increase of ten in criminal justice assistance programs reflected mainly the addition of programs related to missing children, crime victim assistance and compensation, and state and local narcotics assistance.

In some functional areas, small net increases in total programs obscured rather substantial shifts in the total range of program offerings. This was true of the education field, where several new programs were added to emphasize excellence in education and enhanced skills in mathematics, science, foreign languages, and computer learning, at the same time that several programs were terminated in the fields of bilingual education and vocational education. Similarly, in the energy field, there was a shift away from energy conservation, in the form of energy audit programs, toward energy supply, as in the Renewable Energy Research and Development and Fossil Energy Research and Development programs.

Other Trends in Categorical Programs

The three-year period witnessed a resumption of the long-term trend of a decline in the proportion of programs requiring nonfederal matching. This trend had been reversed during the 1981-84 triennium, going from 53.4% to 55.4% of all categorical programs. In 1987, however, nonfederally matched programs dropped back to 53.6% (Table 3). In 1975 they had been 61.5%. Among the new programs added between 1984 and 1987, the number that did not require matching was about double the number that did.

As would be expected, the changing functional mix is reflected in the breakdown of grants by department or agency (Table 4). The Public Health Service and the Department of Justice showed the greatest increase in grant programs between 1984 and 1987.

Methodology

The methodology used in counting grant-in-aid programs was basically the same as that followed in compiling the first ACIR catalog for FY 1975. For ease of reference the explanation contained in the earlier volume is repeated here with appropriate changes.

ACIR used a slightly modified version of the definition of grants-in-aid used by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) in its instructions (Circular No. A-11, Revised) to executive agencies for preparing and submitting budget estimates. Following is OMB's definition.

. . . Grants-in-aid . . . are defined as budget outlays by the federal government in support of state or local programs of government operations or provision of services to the public

Grants-in-aid include:

- (a) Direct cash grants to state or local governmental units, to other public bodies established under state or local law, or their designee (e.g., federal aid for highway construction).
- (b) Payments for grants-in-kind, such as purchases of commodities distributed to state or local governmental institutions (e.g., school lunch programs).
- (c) Payments to nongovernmental entities when such payments result in cash or in-kind services or products that are passed on to state or local governments (e.g., payments to the Corporation for Public Broadcasting or to the American Printing House for the Blind).
- (d) Payments to regional commissions and organizations that are redistributed at the state or local level to provide public services.
- (e) Federal payments to state and local governments for research and development that is an integral part of the state and local government's provision of services to the general public. (e.g., research on crime control financed from law enforcement assistance grants or on mental health associated with the provision of mental rehabilitation services). See (i) and (j) below for exclusions related to research and development.

(f) Shared revenues, a subcategory of grants. These payments to state or local governments are computed as a percentage of the proceeds from the sale of certain federal property, products, or services (e.g., payments from receipts of Oregon and California grant lands) or are tax collections by the federal government that are passed on to state or local governments (e.g., internal revenue collections for Puerto Rico).

Excluded under this definition are:

- (g) Federal administrative expenses associated with these programs.
- (h) Grants directly to profit-making institutions, individuals, and nonprofit institutions not covered above (e.g., payments to Job Corps Centers and trainees).
- (i) Payments for research and development not directly related to the provision of services to the general public (e.g., basic research).
- (j) Payments for services rendered (e.g., utility services, training programs and expenses for federal employees, research and development for federal purposes conducted under contracts, grants, or agreements by such agencies as the National Institutes of Health, the National Science Foundation, the Department of Energy, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and the Department of Defense).
- (k) Federal grants to cover administrative expenses for regional bodies and other funds not redistributed to the states, or their subordinate jurisdictions (e.g., the administrative expenses of the Appalachian Regional Commission).

The OMB definition is used here with the following exceptions: shared revenues and payments in lieu of taxes have been excluded, and programs of aid to institutions of higher education have been included only if the aid is exclusively to public institutions of higher education or if state or local governments have a role in the process. Programs meeting these criteria were identified by a thorough search of the United States Code, 1982 Edition, Supplements I-III and United States Code, Congressional and Administrative News, 99th Congress, 2nd Session. Supplementary documents were used to determine if programs were operational, most particularly the Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance, prepared by the Office of Management and Budget. Since there are no accepted rules for determining when an authorized activity is a separate program, counting the number of grants is not a simple task. A single statute often authorizes a number of separate, albeit related programs. Other statutes combine activities which, because of funding, operation, or administration, are actually separate programs. Some programs are authorized as earmarked activities under an authorization for a broader activity, or several alternate activities may be listed as permissible under one program. Such program authorities were not disaggregated here for the purpose of counting unless supplementary sources indicated the desirability to do so. After a preliminary inventory was made using the above procedure, listings were sent to the departments and agencies administering the grants for confirmation or correction. Replies were received from all 22 of the units canvassed. Their responses were checked against statutory references as necessary. Finally, the entire list was checked against the 1987 Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance, which was distributed in June 1987.

Data Included

The present ACIR catalog lists the block and categorical grant programs funded on January 1, 1987. The programs are listed by budget subfunction number and within that number by the corresponding number assigned by the OMB Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance. The following information is shown for each program: (1) budget subfunction classification and title, (2) U.S. Code or Public Law reference, (3) grant type (method of distribution), (4) formula data elements, where applicable, (5) eligible grant recipients, (6) maximum federal share, (7) administering agency, and (8) Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance number.

The following brief descriptions of these terms may help the reader in using the catalog.

Budget Subfunction—These are the subfunctional categories and numbers that appear in The Budget of the United States Government, FY 1988, Table 10.

Grant Type—Formula grants employ a formula to determine each eligible recipient's allotment. Project grants require competitive applications from aspiring recipients. In some cases, competition for project grant funds is constrained by a formula that may, for instance, determine how much money applicants within each state may receive. These grants are termed formula-project grants. Seventeen of the 134 formula and formula-project grant entries are asterisked to indicate their open-end character. The cost-reimbursement grants do not use formulas as such to allocate a fixed amount of money, but rather commit the federal government to reimburse recipient cost at a specified rate.

Formula Data Elements—These are the 13 major categories of statistical series used in formula grants as identified by the U.S. General Accounting Office in its publication Grants Formulas: A Catalog of Federal Aids to States and Localities, Washington, DC, 1987, GAO/HRD-87-28. The GAO report is as of fiscal year 1984. ACIR has applied the GAO classification to formula grant programs added between FY 1984 and FY 1987.

Federal Share—The numbers listed in this column indicate the maximum percentage of program costs to be paid by federal funds. The number "100" indicates a grant with no matching requirements. It does not mean the federal grant actually covers 100% of the cost of the aided program or activity: it only means the recipient is not required to match any portion of the federal grant. The "cost shared" (CS) category includes all those grants where some recipient contribution is required, but the exact amount is not specified. In such cases, the match may be the subject of negotiation, or may be set by the appropriate Secretary. Other symbols are used to indicate when a matching ratio is variable for different recipients, changes over time, or is different for different activities of types of recipients.

Agency—This column indicates the responsible administering agency for each grant. Except for the Department of Health and Human Services, subdepartmental units are not indicated.

CFDA Number—This is the number assigned the program in the 1987 Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance.

The key on page 13 lists and explains the full range of entries for type of grant, formula data elements, recipient, federal share, and administering agency.

PLEASE NOTE: The 73 new aid programs added in calendar years 1984, 1985 and 1986 are identified with bold face title numbers. See pages 15-35.

Key to Listing

Type of Grant

- F Formula grant
 P Project grant
 F/P Project grant subject to distribution formula

Formula Data Elements

- A. Population—includes series such as total population, population by age, race, density, urban, rural, farm, handicapped, immigrant, and in poverty.
- B. Income—includes per capita income, median family income, aggregate personal income, and wages earned or paid.
- C. Environment—includes land area, land use, environmental conditions, environmental hazardous waste data, size of water systems, volume of oil and gas production, and miles of coastline.
- D. Education—includes enrollment, graduates, and educational expenditures.
- E. Labor—includes civilian labor force, unemployment levels, and employment statistics.
- F. Transportation—includes series, such as miles of highways and rail, aviation facilities, number of vehicles, and number of miles traveled.
- G. Energy—includes energy consumption, heating and cooling degree days, levels of energy conservation, fuel costs, and residential heating/cooling equipment.
- H. Government—includes taxation, expenditures, government employment, and salary levels.
- I. Health—includes illness data, vital statistics, and levels of health-related expenditures.
- J. Price Indices—includes consumer prices, producer prices, and inflation levels.
- K. Housing—includes number of units, condition of units, vacancy rates, and age of housing stock.
- L. Economic Sectors—includes business activity, manufacturing, retail trade, and agricultural statistics.
- M. Miscellaneous Measures of Program Costs/Activity Levels—includes series such as number of meals or number of pints of milk served, other income received by an agency, estimated costs to complete a project, the number of eligible recipients, and prior-year program expenditures.

Recipient

- 1 State governments
 2 State and local governments
 3 Local governments
 4 Governmental and others

Federal Share

- 33-67 Dash indicates match is variable over the stated range.
- 80,30 Comma indicates federal percentage declines over time from the first percentage to the second.
- 50/75 Slash indicates federal share is different for different types of activities.
- 50:75 Colon indicates federal share is different for different types of recipients.
- CS Cost-Shared—federal share less than 100%, but is not specified; it may be negotiable.

The reports of the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations are released in five series: the "A" series denotes reports containing Commission recommendations; the "M" series contains Commission information reports; the "S" series identifies reports based on public opinion surveys; the "B" series reports are abbreviated summaries of full reports; and the "SR" series are staff information reports.

What is ACIR?

The Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations (ACIR) was created by the Congress in 1959 to monitor the operation of the American federal system and to recommend improvements. ACIR is a permanent national bipartisan body representing the executive and legislative branches of Federal, state, and local government and the public.

The Commission is composed of 26 members—nine representing the federal government, 14 representing state and local government, and three representing the public. The President appoints 20—three private citizens and three federal executive officials directly and four governors, three state legislators, four mayors, and three elected county officials from states nominated by the National Governors' Association, the National Conference of State Legislatures, the National League of Cities/U.S. Conference of Mayors, and the National Association of Counties. The three Senators are chosen by the President of the Senate and the three Representatives by the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Each Commission member serves a two-year term and may be reappointed.

As a continuing body, the Commission addresses specific issues and problems, the resolution of which would produce improved cooperation among the levels of government and more effective functioning of the federal system. In addition to dealing with the all-important functional and structural relationships among the various governments, the Commission has extensively studied critical stresses currently being placed on traditional governmental taxing practices. One of the long-range efforts of the Commission has been to seek ways to improve federal, state, and local governmental taxing practices and policies to achieve equitable allocation of resources, increased efficiency in collection and administration, and reduced compliance burdens upon the taxpayers.

Studies undertaken by the Commission have dealt with subjects as diverse as transportation and as specific as state and local taxation of out-of-state mail order sales; as wide ranging as the transformation in American politics to the more specialized issue of local revenue diversification. In selecting items for the research program, the Commission considers the relative importance and urgency of the problem, its manageability from the point of view of finances and staff available to ACIR, and the extent to which the Commission can make a fruitful contribution toward the solution of the problem.

After selecting specific intergovernmental issues for investigation, ACIR follows a multistep procedure that assures review and comment by representatives of all points of view, all affected levels of government, technical experts, and interested groups. The Commission then debates each issue and formulates its policy position. Commission findings and recommendations are published and draft bills and executive orders developed to assist in implementing ACIR policy recommendations.
